The News Kaleidoscope
Coolidge Well Again
Big Country, Big Things
The Mind Rules—But
By Arthur Brisbane

LOOKING INTO the news when it grows up is like looking into a kaleidoscope when you are little. It's a constant changing and rapid forgetting. A while ago the whole world felt that nothing could ever be as interesting as news of Germany's effort to reach Paris. That's ancient history now, and our war thought is concentrated on getting back at leisure, money that we lent in a hurry.

WE ARE NOT apt to get very much of it. The British announce, semi-officially but finally, that they expect France to pay England a dollar for every dollar paid us. That doubles the load and multiplies by two reasons for not paying.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE is back working at his desk, and that's good news. Citizens invited to the White House breakfast report that the President, discussing national affairs in short, crisp sentences, eats buckwheat cakes, with molasses and sausages, between sentences.

THAT CAN be done when you pitch hay on the old farm. But the President's recent touch of indigestion will remind him that you must be careful of your stomach when you hold a job that keeps the blood in your brain all the time and away from the stomach that needs it for digestion. Buckwheat cakes and sausages do not go with constant hard thinking.

THIS COUNTRY does things in a big way. The new Edison Light Company plant in New York will cost fifty millions and will create enough light to supply the whole of France. That one plant develops more power than could be got if all the horses in the United States were hitched up, pulling at one load.

This plant would light 5,000,000 atom homes, enough for any State in the Union, except New York, and enough for New York State, excepting New York City.

JOHN A. KERR, a retired merchant, found his daughter lying dead, killed by escaping gas immediately his heart stopped beating, and he dropped dead.

That's proof that mind controls matter. A mental shock, and nothing else, killed that man.

ON THE other hand, the ultra-foolish, who think that mind rules and can control everything, ignoring Nature's physical laws, learn their rule and if they break a bone and do not have it set properly. Not too much, not too little is the sound maxim. Not too much confidence in material things and not too much ignoring of them.

GERMAN SCIENTISTS, fighting contagious diseases, adopt this motto: "Don't let your children be kissed by strangers." A better motto would be: "Don't let your children be kissed by anybody."

KISSING CHILDREN that do not belong to you is offensive and dangerous stupidity, and that applies to politeness and all others. You need not be diseased to be a carrier of disease. Your own system may resist germs that would be fatal planted on the delicate mucous membrane of a child. Old men kill themselves by going to the funerals of other old men, standing bare-headed in the cold wind. That can't be helped; it's a beautifully sentimental and usually does not matter. But promiscuous kissing of children by people that should have sense enough to leave the things alone can be prevented, and SHOULD be.

NO NEWS of Amundsen at this writing. He and his comrades may be struggling for life on the Polar ice, or he may have found a safe landing place, with plenty of leisure for the return stop-off. Amundsen is a thoroughly scientific man. Peary had the honor of reaching the pole first, and he, Amundsen, may decide to examine it thoroughly while he is there—just that, there is much to examine. If wishing could bring a man back to safety, AMUNDSEN would return.

CHARTER SHIP, CHEAT DEATH ON HONEYMOON

Hamilton, Bermuda, May 24 (A.P.)—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Lamborn of New York City arrived here today on a chartered steamship, bringing with them especially prepared serum for the treatment of their son, John Lamborn, who while on a honeymoon trip here was stricken with pneumonia.

John Lamborn was recently married in the Hotel Biltmore at New York to Miss Anna Elizabeth Helen Pirou, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Fyren of Fall River, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. John Lamborn arrived here on their wedding trip last Thursday. The bridegroom was immediately taken to a hospital, a victim of pneumonia. He was given medical attention, but his parents procured a supply of serum at New York and chartered a ship to bring it to Bermuda.

The serum was given their son, and although he is critically ill his condition is somewhat improved, doctors said this forenoon.

New York, May 26 (A.P.)—Arthur H. Lamborn, reported in Hamilton dispatches to have arrived there today aboard a chartered boat, heard of his son's death.

Back in Prison, Why?--By Donald Lowrie

ARRESTED TO RESCUE FROM LIQUOR

Benefactor Yields to Convict's Plea to Be Released; Going to New York

Back in a felon's cell, after nearly fourteen years of freedom, a victim of his own weakness, and dying of tuberculosis, Donald Lowrie describes the path of sin and shame he trod. Paroled to finish his great book, "My Life in Prison," he gained the confidence of governors and many high in civil and industrial life. But within a short time he was secretly drinking heavily and indulging in numerous intrigues with women.

LATE that Fall, in 1914, my friend Thomas Mott Osborne was appointed warden of Sing Sing prison by Governor Glynn of New York. Glynn had but a few weeks left to serve as Governor, his successor, Charles S. Whitman, having already been elected to take office with the coming of the new year.

Politics in New York State had been in a turmoil, due to the impeachment of Governor Seward, whose election from the governorship was held by many to have been a "high-handed" proceeding. At any rate, Seward was later returned to the Legislature by his New York city constituents.

When I read that Osborne had accepted the Sing Sing post I knew he had a hard road to hoe. Wardens of Sing Sing had from time immemorial failed to weather the treacherous political storms that periodically broke over that wretched tomb of the living dead.

But when a few days later I received a wire from Osborne asking me to join him as his private secretary my views underwent a change. I wanted to go because I wanted to help fight the ring, and I knew my friend would need loyal assistants. I knew he was in for a fight; it could not be otherwise, with his new ideas as to how prison should be run, and facing a bunch of politicians who had always regarded Sing Sing as their own spoils.

They would intrigue against an "outsider" day and night.

Responsibility Put Up Squarely

I was at Woodliffe Ranch, where I had gone to winter up after another bad winter, when this offer came to me, and that night after Older had returned from San Francisco I took the matter up with him and asked his advice.

Older remained silent a long time until I began to think he had not heard what I said. When he did speak his words sounded so.

"What's the use?" he asked, almost as if speaking to himself. To go back there into a restlessness position and get drunk every few weeks would be unfair to Osborne, ruinous to the cause, and a millstone for you. If I thought you could brace up and stay honest I'll say so, and feel gratified that you'd been selected for such a job. As I

PRISONER FOR HOUR

Photo diagram shows how Joseph Conlon, age five, of No. 40 Broadway, Somerville, eased himself into the big, black mouth of a steam roller's smokestack and became a badly scared prisoner. He dropped into the stack from the edge of a roof under which the roller was parked. Inset is young Conlon. He was unhurt by his adventure.

BOY, PRISONER IN SMOKE STACK, CHASED OUT

After long imprisonment for almost an hour in the smoke stack of a steam roller in the shop of James H. Fenton, a contractor, on Pike street, Somerville, Joseph Conlon, 5 years old, of 40 Broadway, Somerville, was rescued by police and citizens, who were forced to take the smoke stack from the machine to get him out. The boy was unhurt.

Prisoners Frank J. Roche was buffed by Mrs. Smith of 450 Broad street, the boy, who had been phoned about the steam roller, was seen while driving along the high side of the stack. With Joseph A.

Wagner of 805 Broadway, and Elizabeth McCarthy of 402 Broadway, Roche went to the scene. Upon arrival, they heard cries from the stack. With hammers, chisels and the two civilians went to work, and after a short time they removed the stack and found the boy doubled up at the bottom. He rolled out unharmed as the stack was removed. The stack was about five feet deep and about one foot in diameter.

JURY IN BOY'S TRIAL VISITS DEATH SCENE

The jury was taken to Berwick to view the place where Tibbets was shot while driving along the high side of the stack. With Joseph A.

Wagner of 805 Broadway, and Elizabeth McCarthy of 402 Broadway, Roche went to the scene. Upon arrival, they heard cries from the stack. 106 MEMBERS QUIT CHURCH IN WAR

SEEK TEN 6 DEACONS STRIKE JOB, BUT 3 STICK

Plan to Replace 5000 Building Laborers in the Local Trades War

Representatives of large Boston contracting firms are today scouring the labor markets of New England for workers to take the place of the 5,000 building laborers who have laid down their implements in a fight for higher wages.

The employment of the men will not start until tomorrow, according to an agreement made by the employers, but in the meantime, agents are signing up men.

The employers are offering the men steady positions at sixty-five cents an hour for common laborers and seventy cents an hour for skilled workers.

In the meantime building protests are being made. Twenty-five hundred men are tied up or about to be tied up. A strike of plasterers' tenders, which started yesterday, was reported as virtually over today, the union chiefs announcing that most of its contractors had signed.

The tenders, getting 35 cents an hour, sought $1.10. The strike was not associated with that of the painters and hod carriers.

WORK NOW HALTED.

With the laborers off the job it is impossible in most cases for the mechanics to carry on their work. It is expected, however, that all operations will be resumed in a day or two, when the new men are put to work.

It is impossible to secure enough laborers in New England to take the place of the strikers. New York and other large centers will be appealed by the agents, and men will be transported to this city.

The union laborers are striking for a wage of seventy-seven and a half cents an hour for unskilled labor and eighty cents for skilled labor.

NO DISORDERS REPORTED.

There are a number of independent contractors who have signed wage scales with the union at the rate of pay demanded by the men and the laborers employed on these jobs returned for work as usual.

The union has placed large placards about these operations, informing the men that the union terms have been met and to continue at work.

There has been no disorder in connection with the strike of the laborers. When the new men are put to work the strikers will leave peaceful picket lines in the jobs where non-union men are employed, according to the labor leaders, but the men have been warned against disorder of any kind.

Representatives of the employers declare that they will have little or no difficulty in recruiting 5,000 laborers to take the place of men on strike.

Close touch with the strike situation is being kept by the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration.

Taxpayers Open Fight to Put the Lid On

Washington, May 26 (U.S.S.)—Strenuous for repeal of the publicity provision of the income tax law and for its extension to other forms of taxation are under way simultaneously here today, following the decision of United States Supreme Court leading previous publication of tax payments.

Another fight over this question in the next session of Congress appeared certain.

French Embassy at Vatican

Rome, May 26 (A.P.)—An agreement was reached today by the government and the opposition in a huge tent in placing a roof over the Vatican which will be maintained.

PASTOR IS "LIBERAL"

The pastor, based on an alleged "liberal" faction of the board of deacons, who have been at odds with the pastor, the Rev. Floyd H. Adams, for three weeks, have refused to resign and the war is temporarily stymied.

Four other members of the board of deacons, who have been at odds with the pastor, the Rev. Floyd H. Adams, for three weeks, have refused to resign and the war is temporarily stymied.

It was early today when a heated debate in the church ended with the six resignations from the board and refusal of four others to resign.

The refusal came despite a majority vote of the congregation that the resignations be submitted.

An even 100 members of the congregation laid the church as the meeting was being adjourned.

SEES FURTHER "BOLT."

S. Harold Amundsen, senior member of the deacons, who refused to resign, predicted that 100 other members of the congregation would look for "a result of steam roller treatment by the liberals."

Deacons submitted their resignations are: John T. Seely, Henry F. John, Martin, Henry C. Coops and K. Stevens. Fred J. Spear, a member of the board of trustees as well as the board of deacons, also presented his resignation, and he and Mr. Stevens were recognized as non-members of the church at their own request.

These deacons who refused to resign are: S. Harold Amundsen, H. F. Dunn, H. D. Webber and L. W. the church.

STARTED OVER GIRL.

The original difficulty in the church was brewed around Dorothy Adams, daughter of the pastor, who formed an "unholy" penitential for the very idea of Dorothy's wanting to dance and see a show once in a while cracked the skin of the congregation right up their backs, as you might say.

Parents declared they did not consider Dorothy a fit person to give their children religious instruction because, oddly enough, the children wanted a little fun, too.

Dr. Adams stood firmly behind his daughter in the controversy—and hence the war, although Dorothy resigned an assistant to the pastor, her father.

ROOF OVER BALL PARK FOR EVOLUTION TRIAL

'HAWK' IS GOING ON STAGE TO AID LUCILLE

Hub Arena Cast May Include Girl He "Kidnaped"; Will Picture Man-Hunt

Doris Woodward, manager of the Lucille Chatterton of Granville, N.H., has signed up for an extensive vaudeville tour of New England for the child's benefit, according to an announcement today by the Jacobs Amusement Agency.

If plans being formulated materialize, the tour will begin on June 22 with a re-enactment of the Vermont man-hunt, at the Boston Arena, with Lucille herself and other principals in the scenes.

Part of every dollar obtained by Woodward from the theatres, and all of the arena proceeds will go to a fund for the education and care of Lucille until she becomes of age or marries, according to the announcement.

FACES NEW TRIAL

Woodward agreed to these conditions, which were part of the offer made to him by the agency. He signed his acceptance from 30 days, where he is temporarily employed while awaiting action on the last remaining charge against him, following his acquittal on the accusation of kidnaping Lucille and of stealing a rifle.

"I cannot come at once, on the advice of my attorney, because I am at present out on $50 bail to appear in court in the near future on a charge of larceny in regards to the blanket I used to cover the little girl on our trip," wrote Parle, WILL REVIEW FLIGHT.

His attorney thought it best to wait until this charge is disposed of, and advance bookings already made for him at a local vaudeville theatre and a Providence house this week and next were cancelled. The proposed tour will first include Providence, Springfield, Hartford and other large cities and then many smaller ones.

COLD SNAP ENDS AS MERCURY CLIMBS TODAY

Remorse hit into the soul of the Weather Man today and, after a trade with his sunny conscience, he came through with a promise of warmer weather with fair skies. The mercury rose steadily during the early hours and although it had reached only 54 at 11 a. m. it will be much warmer later in the day, the forecaster said.

Many of the populace said it was about time, but others with suspicious natures reserved comment until they were sure the Weather Man's promise is no bluff.

By noon the day had warmed up to 61, a temperature 16 degrees above the mark of the same hour yesterday and a climb of 37 degrees in five hours.

TOLD HER NOT TO SAY SHE WAS WIFE, CHARGE

Mrs. Anna McCormack, who is suing her husband, James J. McCormack, for a divorce before Judge Treat in the Probate Court, on the ground of cruel and abusive treatment, testified today that her husband beat her for answering the telephone and telling a woman who called for him that she was his wife. Mrs. McCormack testified she had supported her family since her marriage in Roxbury in 1910. She said that on one occasion when another woman called her husband on the telephone, he threatened to kill her if she ever again said she was his wife, under such circumstances, McCormack is contesting the divorce.

Husband Accused

Charging her husband, Joseph H. Daly of Boston, prominent business man, with cruel and abusive treatment, Mrs. Velma J. Daly of Cambridge, filed a suit for divorce in Middlesex Probate Court.

BRICKLEY GOES ON TRIAL IN STOCK CASE

Ex-Harvard Grid Star Is Accused of Misrepresenting the Value of Securities

Charged with misrepresenting stocks, "Charlie" Brickley, former Everett High School and Harvard football star, went on trial in Superior Court at Springfield today before Judge Dubouque and a jury. Brickley, who confounded the gridding hordes of $24 a bit more than ten years ago, was indicted in 1923, following complaints by purchasers that the stock did not have the value Brickley represented it to have.

Many of the complainants were women, who asserted that they had turned over to the ex-football star dividend paying stock in return for the stock that had not the desired value.

Representing Brickley during selection of the jury today in the trial was Joseph B. Ely, former district attorney in Springfield, while the prosecution is handled by District Attorney Charles H. Wright.

The equal, if not better, than most of the regular $2 stockings.

Our manufacturer, with whom we do a considerable business, made up his surplus stock in the above quantity of silk stockings and sold them to us at a very low price. From his intimate acquaintance with all the details that go to produce a stocking of unusual merit, he advises us that the quality of the silk—the weight of the silk—and the wearing qualities are equal if not better than most of the regular $2 stockings.

Splendid qualities—slim fitting from top to toe—pure dye silk—with rich sheen—full fashioned with care—reinforced lisle tops and soles for wear. We feel sure this is the lowest price that stockings of this quality have been sold for ten years.

SOME EASY BANANA DESSERTS.
We watch the markets for the season ripens them for our table, but we sometimes forget that bananas and oranges are available all the year. They not only are delicious in themselves but may be used with left over of other fruits, making another dessert without ordering from the store. Here are some easy desserts. You can work many combinations of left over with them.

RECIPE NO. 1237
BANANA CAKE.
1 cup butter (softened).
1 cup sugar.
1 cup flour.
3 teaspoons baking powder.
White eggs.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
Mix as you would any butter cake. Bake in shallow pan; but between layers of White Mountain Cream covered with thin slices of banana, and frost the top. This should be eaten the day it is made.

And now a very appetizing banana pudding.

RECIPE NO. 1238
COCONUT FRUIT CUP.
3 oranges.
1 cup diced pineapple.
3 bananas.
1 cup coconut.
Cut the oranges and pineapple into thick slices, then into dice free from seeds and membranes. Slice the bananas thin and grate the coconut. Arrange alternate layers of the different fruits in a deep dish and sprinkle each layer with sugar. Over the whole pour any fruit juice. Tinned pineapples and shredded coconut may be used if desired.

RECIPE NO. 1231
BANANA CANNES.
1 banana.
1 orange.
2 slices pineapple.
Orange dressing.
Canned cherries.
With a sharp knife cut a section of skin from the convex curve of the bananas and carefully take out the fruit, leaving the skin the shape of a canoe. Pare oranges, separate sections, and cut in pieces and mix with pineapple cut in pieces and an equal amount of banana pulp cut in pieces. Fill canoes with fruit, cover with honey dressing lay on bed of shredded lettuce and garnish with candied cherries.

Taste this all-food fruit when honey-ripe!

Of course you like your fruits ripe. Peaches, pears, apples, and bananas—all are at their best and sweetest when they are ripe.

When bananas are really ripe, they are better than sweet, better than ripe—they are delicious.

Buy bananas by the dozen. Don't put them in the ice chest. Keep them out upon the table—in the fruit bowl—at the temperature you like.

Let them ripen. When the golden skin is flecked with amber brown, then a banana is really ripe. Then, inside the golden skin, is a creamy, honey-ripe deliciousness that only a ripe banana can have.

Keep a supply of bananas in your home. Serve them ripe. Slice them over cereals.

Serve ripe bananas in salads, or in any of the hundred other ways that bananas can be served, and treat your sense of taste to a new thrill—the deliciousness of a really ripe banana.

CHURCH JEALOUS OF STAGE, SKINNER TELLS PASTORS

New York, May 26 (AP)—Jealousy of the theatre has been the underlying motive of the church in seeking stage censorship, Oscar Skinner, well known actor, said in an address before 100 Methodist ministers. He stated that church leaders are jealous of the theatre.

Skinner said the invention of the motion picture has been the form of the modern play, the theatre has been the theatre. He said the theatre has been the theatre. He said the theatre has been the theatre.

ON AIR TONIGHT

The Evening Hour comes over WBZ tonight with the entire group in action, and The "Chocolate Soldier" will furnish the music. Instead of an hour of music, it will be an hour of music.

Short Wave Goes Farthest

Few people listening in on a station KDKA realize that in the station is another transmitting station. It is the only one of its size and type in the world, which is forwarding a message to the most distant parts of the globe.

Whether the most distant parts to which the programs are being forwarded be Johannesburg, South Africa, England, Germany, Buenos Aires, South America, Sydney or Melbourne, Australia, or any other point depends on a schedule that is always arranged in advance.

This world-wide radio system, transmission is done by making use of extremely short wave lengths while high power is used for the transmission.

WITH BULLARD IN THE WORLD WAR

A. E. F. Commander's Own Story of Brave Deeds When the Yanks Went to France

It was whispered that the American at the end of the battle heard the voice of some French prisoner.

Allies Tried to Keep Landed Yankees

This battle for nearly three weeks. The French, who had just taken the place of the Moroccan division on our right, was lost to part with the tactical division of the American. February 19, 1918. Toward the end of the battle, the American commander in chief was very careful to retain hold of these troops. It was his requirement, at least with some, that he keep a reserve of troops in his own headquarters, and to be sure full troops therefrom did not what was pointing out all orders and all operations. It was apparent that from their disposition to hold us as "babes in the woods" needing care. We were, but after two weeks of battle, it was not to be any more "babes in the woods" and that they knew it.

Great Preparations for Yankee Raids

How Yanks Won Their First Fight in France

"THE German had well prepared this raid, using specially-trained troops, but our troops counter-attacked, put him on the run at once. He was tangled in his own wire, lost three flame throwers, a machine gun or two, some fifteen dead and a number of corpses hanging visibly in his own wire."—Bullard.

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

The world has been denouncing kings. Money Kings have been denouncing the United States, which had no use for the old-fashioned kind of king, has raised up more of the new-style kings than any other nation on the face of the Earth.

What are some of the results? See what happens when our Money Kings lead Europe. The doors of royal palaces swing wide open for them. Crowded kings do homage to the most powerful of these Money Monarchs. American Ambassadors are at their beck and call. European Prime Ministers metaphorically fall at their feet and offer them adulation. Monarchs of royal splendor are lauded behind their backs.

Announcement that an American Money King is about to visit their country is enough stimulus to cause national rejoicing. Certain parts of Europe, peoples staggering under heavy burdens feebly imagine that the financial control of the New World will be able to wave a wand and cause all their troubles to fall from their shoulders. Despair is turned to hope when listening records that the Money King has graciously consented to grant an audience to the infatuated monarchs of Europe. The appearance in public of an American "Cromwell" causes some cringing of monarchs and the appearance of any crowned head in the world.

Why this new order? Briefly, because Money Monarchs have become more powerful than other Monarchs. Princes of the Purse now control the fates of the world.

Butations of dollars are today greater force than battalions of soldiers. Kings and emperors need to rule the world, to be the masters of financiers and business leaders. To say it would be easier the other way that money rule with Money. Money is King, that the world is ruled, as President Wilson phrased it, "by the counting house."

What then? Power always carries with it responsibility. When have our Money Kings derived their power and to whom are they primarily responsible?

The people of this country, the ordinary folk and families whose labor and earnings and savings have helped to create our national wealth, raise up their voices. Industries, to build our colossal railroads, to develop our unparalleled natural resources, and to build our banks and trust companies and saving banks to our country.

Do all our Money Kings realize that? Have they a sacred sense of their obligation to those from whom their power has come? Or have some of them had their heads turned by all the flattery and adulation, all the obsequiousness, all the bootlicking and the flattery they have experienced, and doubtless enjoy, at the hands and lips of wily Europeans?

Frankly, some of the cables received quoting criticism from our own government and country, and the United States, indicate that the king and the kingmaker have received have caused them to think of the flatterers first and their fellow countrymen second.

Europe despised offending monarchs. Americans will find ways and means of humiliating the Money Monarchs if these Money Monarchs do not watch their step. I venture, indeed, that the Money Monarchs do not watch their step.

Japanese Trying to Sneak Through America's Back Door

A YEAR ago the United States enacted the Japanese Exclusion Law and thought that matter was disposed of.

We knew that our position was invincible; we knew that a sovereign nation had the same right to say who could enter it as the citizen has to say who can enter his house.

Japan knew that our position was invincible. She did not like it because she wanted to come in, but she knew international law and she knew also that she had done the very same thing toward people that she did not want to enter Japan. She excluded the Chinese, her nearest neighbors and her own racial stock!

Now the whole matter is revived by the officials of Hawaii, where Japanese influence is powerful. These officials insist that the United States must enthusiastically welcome to the rights of full citizenship all Japanese born in the Hawaiian Islands.

This would mean that we embrace and plant at our national fire-side not only the sixty-five thousand Japanese under twenty-one years of age, born in Hawaii, but keep on embracing the constantly multiplying yellow output of Hawaii!

The rapidity with which the Japanese multiply was brought to the attention of our lawmakers who went to Hawaii to see the war game.

At the annual May festival thousands of brightly-colored paper fish flew from Japanese clothes lines, each fish standing for a Japanese boy baby.

These Hawaiian officials now demand that America assimilate this never-ending string of fish, and America does not propose to do it!

The fight will break when Congress meets. The Hawaiian government will appear at Washington and demand that Congress compel our immigration authorities to honor without question the birth certificates issued by the Hawaiian government.

Up to this time our immigration officials have refused to honor such certificates unquestioningly. They have made each would-be traveler to America prove his American birth before letting him board ship.

Thus our officials have stemmed the yellow tide which the American people thought had been stopped by the Japanese Exclusion Law.

The determination of the qualifications of those who claim to be Americans by right of birth in Hawaii should be left in the hands of our immigration officials, who are looking out for America. It should not be placed in the hands of any Hawaiian birth-certificate factory, which is looking out for the Japanese.

Aside from the difficulty of distinguishing Japanese from each other, even with photographs, inasmuch as they resemble each other after the fashion of the contents of a bushel of peas, and aside from the vast temptations which would confront any Hawaiian birth-certificate factory to issue fraudulent certificates, there is the real ground upon which we should stand without hesitation.

The United States belongs to the American people, and we propose to keep it American, just as Japan proposes to keep her country Japanese.

Let the whole world know, once and for all, that as a people determined to prevent the pollution of its racial stock, we propose to exclude from the United States every race on earth that will not assimilate with our own.

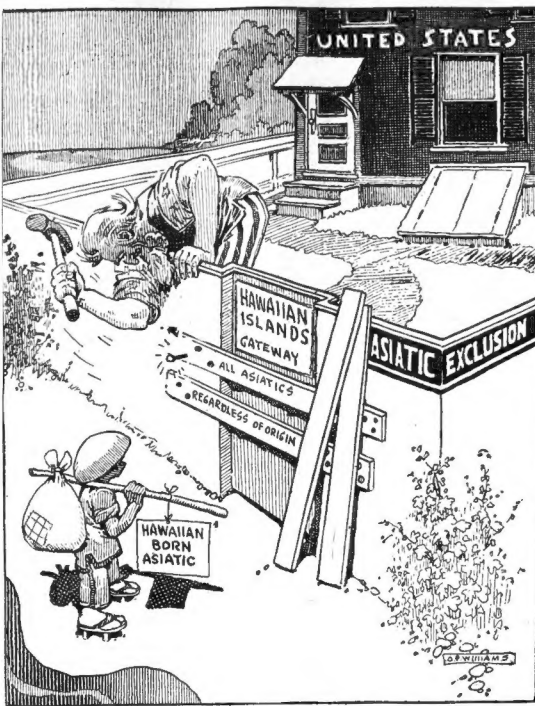

Congress should stand firm and we have every faith that it will.

It will continue to keep our own immigration officials as our sentinels; it will not dismiss them and retain Hawaiian sentinels, who are chiefly concerned in letting Japanese through the lines.

Congress will not stultify itself by locking the front gate with the enactment of the Japanese Exclusion Law and then throwing the back gate of Hawaii wide open.

The Japanese are a great people, but they are racially unassimilable. It is nobody's fault; it is just nature's well-known fact.

Let us look the whole world in the eye and say: This is an American country—and we propose to keep it so!

UNCLE SAM should bar the Hawaiian door to Asiatics and clinch the nails in the bars. He told Japan last year that its people were not wanted in the United States. He used such plain words in the Japanese Exclusion Law that he thought the order unmistakable.

But Uncle Sam could not estimate the depth of the Oriental mind. When Japan's unassimilable citizens were ordered away from the front door of the United States, they slipped around to the back door, the Hawaiian Islands, to plead for admittance in a new guise.

Japan exerts a powerful interest, are planning to admit them. The first step is to be the naturalization of all Japanese born in the Hawaiian Islands. Such a move would put Japan's foot in the door, which would gradually be forced open to admit the yellow millions of the East to spread throughout the whole nation.

The Hawaiian officials should be reminded that when the master of a house orders intruders away from the front porch, servants should not open the back door to them. And Uncle Sam should nail the bars on the back door tight, so that it will not be at the mercy of undesirable guests and negligent servants.

'For Those Who Gave Most'

American Legion Asks Endowment Fund From Those Who Received Most From Winning of War

From those who received the most from the winning of the Great War, the American Legion is asking an Endowment Fund of $5,000,000 "for those who gave the most" towards the defence of the United States against its enemies in that conflict.

The income of this fund is estimated at $225,000 yearly. Only this income and all of this income will be spent for the care and cure of the disabled veterans, and to provide a home and upbringing and an education for everyone of the orphaned children of those who gave or offered their all at the call of their common country.

To each of the forty-eight States a suitable quota has been allotted to the end that the Endowment Fund shall express the enduring gratitude of all those Americans who neither can forget nor wish to forget the debt they can never pay for a service which it was not their privilege to share.

Five hundred thousand dollars is the contribution which the people of Massachusetts have been accorded the privilege of making to this fund. The active working members of the posts of the Legion in the Massachusetts Department and of the units of the Legion Auxiliary have assumed the responsibility of enabling their fellow citizens of the Commonwealth to make the record of Massachusetts in this noble enterprise a source of pride to her citizens and an example to the other States of the Union.

Now is the time and every Massachusetts home is the place to lend a hand in the Endowment Fund campaign.

Give through your Legion Post. Give generously. Give cheerfully. Give without delay.

You will be the richer for such a gift because you will share the privilege of being numbered among those Americans who risk the action to the word of gratitude "for those who gave the most."

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland

It is probably that "selfish" expression in a married man's eyes that appeals so irresistibly to the "mothering instinct" in every woman.

"Love" according to the average housewife, is that rainbow's end and lands you at the kitchen sink.

Nowadays even in a play, the heroine doesn't fall into the hero's arms at the sound of a proposal of marriage—the first falls on his neck and drags him into it.

The trouble is that while one woman is trying to lead a man in the way he should go, some other woman is always holding out an apple and pointing the other way.

The great crime, in grandmother's day, was to be unmannered to mother's day, to be divorced; in daughter's day, it is apparently to be unappreciated.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

He that knows himself, knows others; and he that is ignorant of himself, could not write a very profound lecture on other men's heads.

Groundless prejudices and weaknesses of conscience, instead of tenderness, mislead too many others, to many otherwise good men.

Humility is never so beautiful as when paying for forgiveness or else forgiving another.

It is a madness to have Fortune the mistress of events, because in herself she is nothing, but is ruled by prudence.

Produce not friends in haste, and when thou hast a friend part with him in haste.

Where there is no hope there can be no endeavor.

There is no man that is knowingly wicked but is guilty to himself, and there is no man that carries great about him but he receives a sting into his soul.

Pure reason or intuition holds a similar relation to the understanding that perception holds to sensation.

Between craft and credulity, the voice of reason is still—Burke.

I would rather excel others in knowledge than in power.

Furnishing a Home

Helping Hand Editor:

My husband was in the hospital several months and I lived in one room. Now we are trying to get on our feet. Would appreciate a dresser, large cook stove, a couple of beds with spring and mattress.

When a man wants to do anything against his principles he first gets some women to agree that he "ought to do it" and then soothes his conscience with the assurance that he did it "for love."

A practiced lover never loses his equilibrium sufficiently to plunge into anything serious, no matter how much the girl may rock the boat.

Thank heaven, a festive birthday is something that can happen to a woman only once in a lifetime—and even then, if she knows how—she can go right on being "thirty-nine" until she glides gracefully into fifty.

Almost any man would rather fight with a girl who loves him than talk psychology with one who dandles him.

ARE WE AMERICANS LIVING TOO FAST?

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A BUNCH of German experts came over the other day on a steamer from Hamburg, and Professor Emil Kraepelin in an interview expressed himself as believing that people are living too fast in this country.

He said that young men are going ahead one hundred years in the same time that they are advancing a quarter of a century in Europe.

He held that this would work havoc with the nervous system, and yet, after all, it might be a good thing.

It may be found out that speed in living, as we have here, is advantageous for race development instead of destructive. Those who have traveled in Europe have remarked upon the apparent slowness of life. People appear to have plenty of time—to work, time to play, time to rest, and time to enjoy themselves. Here we are going fast all the time.

The trouble is that the American ideal is different from the European.

According to the American notion, a man is born to achieve something, while according to the European notion he is born to enjoy something.

In America enjoyment only comes through achievement. It is the reward of the deed.

Secretary Mellon, seventy years of age, is still a busy man. He has taken a job the salary for which he does not need, for he is a very rich man, and apparently taken it in order to be busy about something worth while. Every day is full of activity.

He is the type of the American man who is not happy unless he is doing something. With us a man who stops work stops life. More people are killed from resting than from any other cause, with us.

In Europe it is different. There orders of nobility, for instance, are all founded upon a leisure class. A man is noble in proportion as he can go far enough back to find an ancestor who worked for his salt.

There it is considered a disgrace to be in trade. With us if a man is doing nothing he is disgraced.

It is all in the way you look at it, and who knows whether our point of view is not sounder than the European?

At least our idea makes for progress, for unceasing activity and invention. We are not satisfied with things as they are, but we must be going on.

His explanation perhaps America's predominance in the world.

WAS THIS COUNTRY A HUMAN CRADLE?

By Garrett P. Servis
Noted Anatomist and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

WHATSOEVER may be the upshot of the reported discovery of rock pictures of dinosaurs and elephants apparently made by prehistoric man on the walls of caves in Arizona, at any rate it calls attention once more to the question whether the American continent independently produced their first human inhabitants or derived them from Asia on the one hand and Europe or Africa on the other.

The trend of opinion among archaeologists in recent years has favored the theory of the Asiatic origin of mankind. But the origin of man, which was likewise the origin of the antelope, ape, monkey and lemur also branched out on their own lines, and the beginning of the human race is to be found on one side of the earth.

It seems to be making human evolution only so much the more apparently miraculous to assume that it began only in one particular place on the wide globe and spread from that place as from a "creation" center.

This, to be sure, would suit the "Garden of Eden" narrative, but with regard to that, a believer in the multiple origin of mankind might appeal to the legend of the "Tree of Life," which was supposed to have branched the earth before it began only in one particular place on the wide globe and spread from that place as from a "creation" center.

The pre-Adamic human mystery in the corner of Oriental lore is the legend of the "Tree of Life," which was supposed to have branched the earth before it began only in one particular place on the wide globe and spread from that place as from a "creation" center.

With regard to elephants—or the American type of elephant, the mastodon—the case is not the same. In the first chapter and verse of the second chapter—as has been referred to, except as far as the condemnation and burning of his book by the ecclesiastical authorities may be called a refutation. But if a unique locality is insisted on for the origin of mankind, resort could be had to the North Pole, which would provide a way for America to become inhabited from the single original cradle, without being indebted to any of the other continents.

Starting from the present site of the Arctic Sea, the primeval race might have followed two diastrophic upland lines toward the south, one of them leading through the center of Asia toward Ceylon, so remote as to be almost unconnected with the central line of North America, would be on the straight road to Arizona, Mexico and the "Western Hemisphere."

If you will turn the north pole of a globe toward you, you will perceive at a glance how irresistibly a theory of the independent, and apparently synchronous, peopling of America and Asia would grow out of the primary assumption that the earth's globe is to cool off and become habitable.

No theories about "landbridges" or perilous adventures across broad tracts of sea, and among scattered groups of islands, serving for "stepping stones" would then be needed to account for the dispersion of a single primal race down both the continental flanks of the world.

As to the alleged prehistoric representations of dinosaurs in the Arizona canyons, it only needs to be recalled that even the most extreme estimates of evolutionists concerning the first appearance of human beings on the earth, does not, by millions of years, reach far enough back to meet the dinosaurian age.

With regard to elephants—or the American type of elephant, the mastodon—the case is not the same. In the first chapter and verse of the second chapter—as has been referred to, except as far as the condemnation and burning of

ONCE-OVERS

WHEN SCHOOL BOYS AND GIRLS WORK A WHILE THEY LEARN THE NECESSITY OF TAKING CARE OF THEIR MONEY

Soon boys and girls will be pouring out of high schools with the recognition which comes from their having finished their course.

They will have a universal discussion of it to go to college or not to go to college.

Parents realize that one must be well educated to compete with the many who are well prepared.

How is the money to be raised? This is usually the big point. It must be found in the greatest economy must be practiced to meet the daily bread and butter question.

Most theories of economies that she must resort to. Father goes over his expenses to see if they can be curtailed. Sometimes college expenses can be met.

The boy or the girl who goes through college without having made an extra cent on his own account is not so much to be congratulated. Often it is a good thing for the boy or girl to work a year to learn the value of money.

Work means then appreciate the price that is paid for training.
